The Butler franchise is encountering some owner dissension. The managing partners are squabbling about a team name and mascot. Look for some sort of aquatic animal to be eventually chosen. Send all suggestions directly to the new Butler dome stadium.

Sled (PA Wildcat team co-owner) has proposed that all trading between the Lieberman franchises (RD & PG) and the rest of the team owners be outlawed. Of course his proposal is not retroactive, seeing that his team has already dealt with PG.

Did you Know?...

- LA has had at least 6 starters score every week.
- RD has had negative point production from its starting quarterbacks in 4 of 6 weeks.
- DS has a total of 4 points from all its running backs combined. That's zero touchdowns.
- The net total of PA getting and then trading M. Higgs (RB) is: Giving up B. Favre (QB), in exchange for J. George (QB) and B. Perriman (WR). Looks like PA did good on those deals, but you won't find either PG or SC complaining yet as early returns are high on their PA aquisitions.

During weeks 15-17, all teams will continue to submit weekly line-ups, whether or not in the playoffs!!!

All playoffs occur during weeks 15 and 16.

Total of fourteen regular season games. Seven at home, seven away.

Play each team in division twice. One at home, one away.

Play each non-division team once.

No team will begin the season with four straight home or away games.

Every team has at least two of its final five games at home, one of its last three.

Within each division, each team will have played an equal amount of intradivision games at any point during the season.

Special 'rivalry weeks' will be played throughout the season, during week 5 and the final three weeks (12-14) of head-to-head competition, when every league team will play within its own division.
