CHARGES OF RACISM HURLED AT BANDITS!

Players say owner cares more about his dog than them!

By Kitty Wa Heidi

Football Flyer

Inside sources are reporting that State College Bandits owner Michael Cerenzia was recently overheard making derogatory racial comments about some of his players.

The reputed comments were made about some Bandits Afro-American players who were called "my nigger boys" by Cerenzia. Individual Bandit players would not go on record with an official response but did say that "Cerenzia cares more about that damn dog than he does about his players. We're tired of that mutt ruling the locker room."

The controversy is eerily similar to that of baseball owner Marge Schott, who recently returned to baseball after a year suspension for making derogatory racial comments about some of her Afro-American players.

Former Bandit WR Fred Barnett responded to questions this week, saying the main reason he wanted out of State College was to escape the prejudice by owner Cerenzia towards blacks.

Officials from the LA Riot!, this week's opponent for the Bandits, have called for a full investigation into the allegations and have recommended a one-year suspension for owner Cerenzia and his little dog, too.

Week 10 Game Summaries

LA Riot! 47, PG Pachyderms 34

LA owner Sam McClain predicted correctly when he said the honeymoon was over. Pachy co-owner returned from his honeymoon to find himself 22 points down to the undefeated Riot! Pachy RB Marcus Allen and QB Brett Favre made up some of the deficit in Monday night's game, but it wasn't enough and the Riot remain undefeated and extend the longest winning streak in the history of the league to 10 games.

LA had star RB Ricky Watters out on a vacation week, but RB Barry Foster extended his NFL-leading TD total in warming up for the Riot!'s big showdown this week with defending FFL champion SC Bandits.

NY Griffons 48, PA Wildcats 20

The Griffons strengthened their stranglehold on the wildcard slot with a convincing win over the anemic Wildcats. Recent waiver wire pickup QB Jeff George set the season-to-date high point total for a QB with a 3 TD, 376 yard 22 point performance that alone would have whipped the Kittens. TE Jackie Harris, who was nearly traded to the Wildcats recently, provided the Griffons with their only other TD.

Wildcat bench-warmers Gary Clark and Jeff Query scored TDs while all the starters (other than Troy Aikman) couldn't find the end zone. The injury-prone Wildcats suffered yet another setback with the hamstring pull of Aikman.

SC Bandits 63, VA Big Bang 56

The Bandits scored in the 60s for the second consecutive week and beat the Big Bang, which scored its highest point total in franchise history. The Big Bang has lost 2 of its last 3 games despite scoring 143 points over that same stretch.

SC QB Warren Moon continues to prove he is back in a big way, while Anthony Miller stepped in for the vacationing Andre Rison to score a TD and rack up 142 yards.

VA RB Ron Moore had a huge day with 160 yards rushing, but rumors at presstime had Moore being traded to a team in contention. SC ups its record to 7-3 while the Big Bang falls to 2-8.

MI Muffdivers 75, PN Penetrators 40

The Muffdivers snapped their three game losing streak in a huge way, setting the season-to-date high point total for a team. All Miami players scored except for the Rocket, Raghib Ismael. Four Muffdivers scored in double digits: Boomer Esiason 17, Barry Sanders 17, Natrone Means 14, and Eric Green 11.

Miami also gained back some ground on the L.A. Riot! in the overall point race, closing the gap to within 68 points.

The Penetrators drop to 4-6 despite a huge game from WR Reggie Langhorne, who scored a 72 yard TD and rang up a whopping 203 yards receiving while still trying to prove wrong the naysayers who balked at Pennington's trade of Michael Haynes to acquire Langhorne.

RD Raptors 46, BR Blowfish 38

Richmond's "E & E Wrecking Crew" of Elway and Emmitt turned in another killer week as the Raptors keep pace in the Southern Division and stay just a game behind the Miami Muffdivers. Rumors just before presstime also had Richmond acquiring another running back who is carrying a hot hand right now, too. Butler drops back to .500 and slips a game further behind State College in the Central Division. Butler sat TE Johnny Mitchell on the bench this week, and his 2 TDs could have made the difference. Butler also had a chance with superhuman WR Sterling Sharpe playing in the Monday night game, but Sharpe turned in a well below-par 2 point performance.

DS Armadillos 39, NJ Kings 12

The Armadillos matched last year's win total with a convincing win over the hapless Kings.

No one can accuse the Dillos of running up the score on the Kings either, because the Dillos bench warmers consisted of Anthony Carter, Chris Carter and Michael Jackson, who would have contributed another 33 points had they been in the lineup. New Jersey started 3 running backs for only the 3rd time this year, but still managed to get only 2 points from them. New Jersey RBs have scored a dreadful cumulative 24 points THIS SEASON. Emmitt Smith alone scored 29 points in week nine.

TRANSACTIONS: week 10 etc.

- BLOCKBUSTER TRADE: The Pennsylvania Wildcats, after shopping him around for several weeks, traded star running back Lorenzo White, Derricks, to the State College Bandits. The Wildcats also shipped their 7th round 1994 draft pick along with White. In return, the Wildcats received State College's 1st and 6th round draft picks in 1994 and kicker Fuad Reveiz, Norsemen.
- Dallas Armadillos, who are, by the way, shopping a lot of their players, added Horace "Backflip" Copeland, WR, Tampa Bumbaleers and dropped former Penn State RB Sam "Tango &" Gash, Patsies.
- Dallas also added James "Lear" Jett, WR, Redders and dropped former Penn State WR O.J. McDuffie, Da Fish.
- Dallas then promptly traded Horace Copeland to the L.A. Riot! for WR Courtney Hawkins, Bumbaleers and L.A.'s 5th round 1994 draft pick.
- Los Angeles Riot! added TE Keith McKeller from the 3-in-a-row Chokers as his final add following the trade that sent RB Roosevelt Potts to New York. L.A. did hold out far longer than the 24 hours he should have used to name this add to his roster, prompting the commissioner to threaten sanctions against the Riot! for not choosing his add in a timely fashion. The sanctions did not take effect, however, before the add was made.
- The L.A. Riot! also added RB David Lang from the Sheep with Horns, and dropped kick hooker Mike Cofers, 69ers.
- The Pennington Penetrators, keeping with a long-standing team tradition of changing QBs every 1.5 weeks, added their 6th QB of the year: Jim Harbaugh, Da Bears. Pennington dropped QB Jim "The Future's So Bright, I Gotta Wear Shades" McMahon, Norsemen.
- CORRECTION: The final score from last week's Butler-Dallas tilt was incorrect. The correct final score should have read Butler 65, Dallas 30 (previously reported as Dallas 28). We regret any inconvenience the error might have caused.
- Actually, we don't give a shit.
- Virginia Verdicts rebelled against the imposition of a team name and finally came up with one of their own: The Big Bang.
- CORRECTION: The Butler Blowfish last week actually set the season-to-date record for 2 running backs at 22 points. This was inadvertently left off the page one Stat Sheet. Again, we sincerely regret the error (bullshit!) and it has been corrected in this week's issue.
- Pennsylvania, Virginia and New Jersey owners have officially thrown in the towel on the 1993 season.

New Jersey Kings unveil new logo; move into new, indoor stadium

The New Jersey Kings, mired in the midst of a 2-8 season, turned the spotlight on the future recently when they unveiled the new team logo and moved into a new stadium in Parsippany.

The new stadium, which has not yet been named, features a state-of-the-art indoor natural grass. Team owner David Zilberfarb told Fantasy Football Flyer recently that the new grass is actually a hybrid of several hydroponically grown grasses, including sen-similia, which can also be smoked. The decision to move into the new stadium in the middle of this season, as opposed to waiting until the off season, was made after several members team requested the move. The general feeling from the team was that if they couldn't have a winning season, they could at least enjoy the grass field.

The new team logo, as designed by the State College, PA design firm of Winston Graphics, features a crown sitting atop a football, with the silhouette of the state of New Jersey atop the crown.

The new team offices for the New Jersey Kings and team owner David Zilberfarb are as follows:

(a.k.a. Zilber's new address)

Line-up snafu in Pennington

The Pennington Penetrators were called to the mat by Miami owner Pat Landy this week with a line-up snafu. PN owner Jim Waugh called in WR Wendell Davis to both the Miami squad and to the commish.

Unfortunately, PN does not have Wendell Davis. They do have Willie Davis. But Miami ownership pointed out that since Wendell Davis is a different player than Willie, the same substitution rule that went against Miami's kicker earlier in the year should be applied here.

The commissioner agreed, ruling an illegal player and substituting the WR on PN's roster the longest, which was Eric Martin, who had the week off.

The ruling did not affect the outcome of the game.

Rumors surround the L.A. Riot! Will they change the team name?

By Kitty Wa Kelly
Hollywood Gossip Reporter
L.A. Riot Team Masseuse

Los Angeles, CA - L.A. Riot General Manager Samuel A. McClain denied reports this week that the team is considering moving or renaming the franchise during the season.

Word on the street last week was that the Los Angeles franchise would be renamed the "L.A. Blaze!" and that the team logo and colors would be changed to orange and amber.

change might be appropriate at some later date.

"Perhaps 'Southern California Disaster!' would better represent the entire local area served by the franchise," he said.

McClain noted that an additional benefit of the change would be the increased souvenir sales a new logo could bring the team.

McClain is also said to be studying the possibility of acquiring an expansion team.

The Riot! legal staff is reportedly researching the new FFL expansion rules to determine if there are any clauses that could be interpreted by the commissioner outlawing an existing team from being split in two, thereby allowing protection of more players.

Another California team? How about the San Francisco Fog!

With all the talk of FFL expansion recently, one potential owner seems to have made a bold move to the front of the pack.

Dan Callahan, a Fantasy Football fan and subscriber to this newsletter, showed up in Pittsburgh at the wedding of PG Pachyderm Co-owner David Lieberman and announced to those present that he has the financial backing and a stadium in place for the expansion San Francisco Fog.

Callahan's presentation impressed this editor, but an inebriated commissioner refused to tip his hand on his thoughts about expansion to the Bay area.

Speculation is rampant, however, that expansion combined with realignment could move the L.A. Riot! into a Western Division, away from the Eastern teams, and that this idea would find very sympathetic ears in the commissioner's office.

Letters to the editor...

Dear Editor,

Upon perusing my daily mail, I was pleased to have received the latest issue of "Fantasy Football Flyer." Since the football season brings with it a substantial amount of absence of attention, I took comfort in knowing I had some entertainment, especially this Monday night.

I was shocked and disappointed that such a noteworthy publication would stoop to admitting to it's lineup the likes of such low caliber as "The Miami Muffdivers."

While not in the least bit personally offended, I do, however, feel obliged to address this illness.

The team name "Miami Muffdivers" is obviously a small attempt by a small person to lower the better sex to his own level. Interestingly, men often choose team names that reflect what they imagine themselves to be e.g. "The Giants" (which would have worked equally well in this case).

While I realize and empathize with the fact that certain physiological shortcomings have influenced his choice of team name, other options are available. He should consider discussing his problem with a proctologist/urologist. If he prefers a more private approach towards solving his problem, I urge him to consider some of the many discreet mail-order devices available.

Fortunately, I was able to obtain the offending patient's address and, in the meantime, am mailing him a small drum which I hope he uses to beat out his misogynic hostilities.

Sincerely,
Patti Palmer
Team Massuese, LA Riot!

(EDITOR'S NOTE: I have learned through informed sources that Ms. Palmer's letter also addressed certain sexist issues within the L.A. Riot! organization, but was edited by the L.A. Riot front office before it was delivered to FFF.

Dear Editor,

I strongly object, and resolutely reject, the unilateral imposition of a team name upon the Virginia squad by a megalomaniacal (and inebriated) FFL Commissioner. I believe the major reason for the Commissioner's action was the numerous reference and pressures exerted by the Editor of this newsletter concerning Virginia's lack of team name.

As an Officer of the Court, I am sworn to uphold the U.S. Constitution and in particular that most cherished, inherent First Amendment right of freedom to choose a team name at leisure. Moreover, I am sick and tired of Northern liberal newspaper editors and self-important New York City bigwigs attempting to impose their will on "us simple folk." As you may (or may not) know, Virginia was the proud seat of a previous secession which was caused by Northern tyrants and their unwillingness to allow for self-determination in the South. If you do not withdraw the name Virginia Verdicts immediately, you may be faced with yet another secession.

Accordingly, I submit the name

"The Big Virginia Bang" as the OFFICIAL name for the Virginia squad (team logo at right).

To address the issue of lack of spousal support within the Virginia organization, may I add that my Spouse helped draft and prepare this letter, thereby exhibiting the grandest gesture of support I have experienced since the beginning of the League. You see, she, likewise, is sworn to uphold the tenets handed down by Our Great Fathers and deeply resents the encroachment upon her freedom to support, or not support, "dubious football-related activities."

My past complaints are hereby withdrawn.

Wayne Rupert
Owner

Dear Mr. Editor,

I'd like to be the first FFL team owner to congratulate you on your Cy Young win. You are truly a master of many talents. Not only can you hold down a full-time job, produce the weekly FFL Flyer, but you managed to win 22 games this season.

Cheers to Ron "Blackjack" "Ying" Yeany.

(For those who haven't seen Ying in a while, he is sporting a kick-ass goatee.)
